Getter and setter are evil

If you want public data, make it public, get rid of the getter and setter methods to reduce the number of methods the client has to wade through

If you really need to do something else in the method, call it a getter/setter method when it has more responsibilities than simply get or set

Public field is better than getter/setter